North Vietnamese troops used artillery for the first time in their 1970 offensive Thursday, shelling one of the last government outposts standing northeast of the Plain of Jars.

Government troops were reported moving northeast of Sam Thong to cut North Vietnamese supply lines in that area.

Cambodian Civilians Shot During Viet Cong Battle

PRASAUT, Cambodia (AP) — At least 73 Vietnamese men, women and children held behind barbed wire in this town were killed by automatic weapons fire early today.

They were cut down about the same time a Viet Cong force attacked Prasaut, 20 miles from South Vietnam, from all sides for six hours with mortars, B40 rockets and automatic rifles.

The exact circumstances surrounding the slaughter of the Vietnamese held under guard as security risks were not clear.

Cambodian troops in position around the detention camp were hesitant to discuss it.

One lieutenant said the Vietnamese rounded up Wednesday, were killed in a crossfire between attacking Viet Cong and Cambodian troops.

Two Viet Cong bodies were still lying in the dry paddy field only 100 yards from the detention camp which is on the exposed eastern edge of Prasaut.

A nearby thatch house lay in smouldering ruins and troops said Viet Cong grenades did it.

Teamsters Strike Brings Several Violent Clashes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Continuing strikes by truckers have resulted in a Chicago lockout, layoffs in several Midwestern cities and brought scattered instances of violence.

In other fields there was a teachers' strike in Minneapolis and threats of similar walkouts in three other cities, and a continuing "sick out" by some air traffic controllers.

Decision Soon on Impeachment Attempt

WASHINGTON (AP) — A final decision by a group of House members on an attempt to impeach Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas probably will be made next week. The decision likely will be to proceed.

House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford met Thursday with House members anxious to initiate an impeachment proceeding and found himself faced with strong sentiment to take action immediately, sources said.

Senate rejection the previous day of President Nixon's court nominee, G. Harrold Carswell, "opened the flood gates," the source said. "There was a considerable amount of sentiment that Mr. Douglas ought not to remain on the court, that if Carswell wasn't satisfactory, Douglas isn't either."

"Gerry is trying to find a course of action that wouldn't be too one-sided or too political. He is trying to let everybody cool off over the weekend and then will get together with everybody and decide what he and the other members are going to do."

Douglas, 71, and an associate justice for 31 years, was heavily criticized last year for his role as president of the Albert Parvin Foundation, which received considerable income from Las Vegas gambling enterprises and originally was funded by a hotel-casino sale set up by gangster Meyer Lansky.

Douglas resigned from the foundation last May and has denied knowledge of any Lansky role in financing the organization.

More recently, Douglas was criticized for his newly published book, "Points of Rebellion," in which he wrote that "growing rightist tendencies" in America threaten to make man an automaton.

Several Republicans who attended the Thursday meeting told Ford that if he did not act against Douglas by next week they would do so themselves.

"Ford is not sure how much time he'll have any more," the source said. "The only sure thing is that if something is going to be done, it will have to be done by the House."

"There are only three ways to remove a Supreme Court justice. The first involves the Almighty, over whom the House has no control. The second would be action by Justice Douglas himself. The House has no control there, either."

The third way is through the House, acting as sort of a grand jury, then votes. If impeachment is approved by a simple majority—219 votes—the matter then goes to the Senate for trial.

The source estimated at least 100 co-sponsors could easily be mustered for an impeachment move.

The Constitution provides Supreme Court justices serve during good behavior.

If the committee, following its hearings, feels there are grounds for removing the justice, it approves the resolution and sends it to the full House.

Lovell, the mission commander, was known to have misgivings about having an under-study step in just before curtain time. His appraisal of how well Swigert fit in was a major factor in the final decision.

Mission Director Chester N. Lee ordered the countdown for the launching to proceed after a 2 1/2 hour conference with NASA officials about all aspects of the flight.

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew and Chancellor Willy Brandt of West Germany headed the list of distinguished guests expected for the liftoff. Others included Secretary of State William P. Rogers, Housing and Urban Development Secretary George W. Romney, and Agriculture Secretary Clifford M. Hardin.

Awaiting Apollo Decision On Saturday's Moon Shot

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The space agency gave a go-ahead today for launch of Apollo 13 to the moon Saturday with novice astronaut John L. Swigert aboard as a last-minute substitute.

Thomas K. Mattingly II, who had the misfortune not to be immune to the German measles to which he was exposed, was all but ruled out of the mission Thursday. Physicians figured they'd be taking too much of a chance sending him on the 10-day flight.

While Swigert worked out in simulators with his new crewmates, the sleek, 363-foot high Saturn 5 rocket was being readied as if no uncertainties existed about its human cargo.

The preparations were on

Jobless Increase Is Noted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate continued rising last month to the highest levels in nearly five years, climbing from 4.2 to 4.4 per cent of the civilian labor force, the government said today.

The actual number of jobless persons declined 61,000 but unemployment generally falls even more sharply in March. The Labor Department therefore figured this as a rise of 230,000 on a seasonal basis to a total of 3.7 million unemployed.

The report by the Bureau of Labor Statistics marked the third straight monthly increase in unemployment under President Nixon's anti-inflation policies.

The number of unemployed has risen one million since March 1969, when the jobless figures dropped almost to the post-Korean war low.

The bureau also reported that average hourly earnings of some 45 million rank-and-file workers rose one cent in March to $3.16. Average weekly earnings were up 68 cents to $117.55, representing an increase of $5.88 or 5.3 per cent over the year.

However, after adjustment for the past year's rise in living costs—the sharpest in 20 years—real earnings were slightly below those of a year ago, the bureau said.

The March report said the rise in unemployment was concentrated among adults seeking full-time jobs.

The nation's total employment rose 468,000 to 77,957,000 but the bureau said the increase was almost entirely among part-time workers.

Most of the rise in unemployment last month was among women, whose jobless rate rose from 4.1 to 4.5 per cent, the highest level in 2 1/2 years.

The unemployment rate for men rose slightly from 2.8 to 2.9 per cent and the rate for teen-agers was up from 13.4 to 13.9 per cent, the bureau said.

Issues in the other prospective teacher strikes ranged from salary demands to desegregation policies.

In the make-believe space capsule where launch, flying and moon-landing conditions are simulated by computers, Swigert worked on achieving the precise coordination that is needed among crew members.

The question was not how well he knew his job. His training had been identical with Mattingly's, but always with different cabin mates.

"It's really a compatibility sort of thing to get him up to speed, in language and responses—this sort of thing," a space agency spokesman said.

"It's a matter of responding and knowing. A lot of times they use their own sort of shorthand in speaking."

Such compatibility could be crucial in an emergency.

Seeking Clarification on Vote

City Republicans are exploring legal means of resolving absentee ballot discrepancies in the First and Second Wards in last Tuesday's election.

Attorney Donald Barnes, retained by city Republicans, conferred with Circuit Judge Frank Hayes and city counselor Bob Fritz Friday morning about the discrepancies.

At issue are 102 absentee ballots from the First Ward which were received by the city clerk's office. Totals, however, showed Republican Jim Steele with 93 absentee votes and Jesse (Sonny) Robinson with 55, for a total of 148 absentee votes cast, leaving 46 unexplained.

The Second Ward returned 192 absentee ballots, but final totals showed Democrat Martin Biggs with 97 and Republican Bobby Moore with 35, for a total of 133 ballots cast, 59 less than were returned.

The First Ward race saw Robinson edge Steele by only 16 votes. In the Second Ward, Biggs defeated Moore by 68 votes.

City clerk Ralph Dredrick surmised that judges counting ballots divided them into three

Vandekamp Resigns As Treasurer

JOHNSON, Fla. (AP) — Gov. Claude Kirk, backed by 90 Florida lawmen, named himself superintendent of Manatee County schools today. None of the U.S. marshals sent to enforce a federal court integration order on Thursday appeared.

A U.S. attorney said Thursday the federal officers were threatened with gunfire if they tried to enforce the desegregation order with arrests.

"I was told by the governor's office that if the marshals try to enter the area and arrest anyone, they will be fired on," U.S. Atty. John Briggs reported.

A Kirk aide denied the threat was made.

Kirk took over Manatee County school headquarters at 4:30 a.m. today and moved into the office of the school superintendent he suspended twice this week.

The governor sent an aide with surgical tape and a marking pen to paste over the suspended superintendent's name a sign that read: "Superintendent Gov. Claude Kirk Jr."

Kirk gathered about 10 state troopers and sheriff's deputies in his command center and put about 80 more officers—all in civilian clothes—in an upstairs meeting room of the two-story brick building. No weapons were in evidence.

The Republican chief executive said he would not appear personally before a federal court judge in Tampa this afternoon to show why he should not be held in contempt of court for blocking integration of the schools in this Gulf Coast county.

Kirk said he was hopeful the federal judge would hold him in contempt and fine him.

Vandekamp called it a privilege to have served on the board 14 years, adding that he would assist his successor in any way necessary to learn the job.

The City Council could not officially act on Vandekamp's resignation Thursday night due to lack of a quorum. Monday night's council meeting had also failed to muster a quorum. Only four councilmen showed up for both scheduled sessions.

Mayor Walker said Friday that he would not attempt to call another City Council meeting before April 20, when Mayor-elect Jerry Jones and the new council will be sworn in.

He added that payment of city bills may be delayed this month, however, because of the missed meetings.

Five deputies are under arrest, although not in physical custody. The arrests were made when marshals tried to serve integration orders at the school Thursday. The men refused to go to jail.

Briggs declined to say what his next move would be—"I'm like a coach, I don't really expect to talk about the game plan before the game"—but said he had talked with U.S. Justice Department officials who had approved his undisclosed plan of action.

Governor Names Himself As Florida School Official

The gubernatorial takeover, however, threatened teachers and school employees with a personal financial crisis.

In Tallahassee, State Atty. Gen. Earl Faircloth said checks to school system employees could not be issued because Kirk had suspended all the top county school officials. Faircloth said Kirk could pay the workers with warrants or they can sue in court.

U.S. Atty. Briggs said federal officials consider three Kirk aides, the county sheriff and

Magistrate Court Charges Are Filed

Gary W. Curry, 19, 617 Wilkerson, was formally charged with two capital offenses and one lesser charge Thursday afternoon, following his arrest Wednesday by the Pettis County Sheriff's Department for investigation of burglary of an occupied dwelling.

Prosecuting Attorney Henry Keeler told newsmen Thursday afternoon that charges of rape and two charges of robbery were filed in Magistrate Court against Curry.

About 2:20 p.m. Wednesday, Curry allegedly broke into the Robert Bohm residence, Route 3, forcibly raped Mrs. Donna Bohm, 24, and left with a shotgun and rifle he took from the home, according to Sheriff Emmett Fairfax.

After leaving the Bohm residence, Curry reportedly proceeded about a half-mile north on Route MM to the Cebe Brownfield residence where he took another shotgun and a rifle from Brownfield at gunpoint. He then had Brownfield give him some food and saddle one of his horses, saying he was going to hide out in the woods.

The Pettis County Sheriff's Department received a call from Brownfield, and while officers were enroute to the scene, they received a report of the robbery at the Bohm residence. Deputies Don Stratton and Jim Lawson apprehended Curry in a field on the Brownfield farm after he had some trouble with Brownfield's horse.

The other three men picked up by the Sheriff's Department after they were identified as being with Curry earlier, were

Will Suspend Additives Previously Deemed Safe

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration has announced it is revoking the use of possibly thousands of food additives previously cleared under informal sanctioning procedures.

Those procedures were so informal officials aren't even sure how many or what substances may be affected by the revocation. A spokesman said FDA specialists have estimated as few as 1,000 or as many as 10,000 chemicals, spices and other additives might be involved.

Some of the chemicals may be already permitted under the more formal "Generally Recognized as Safe"—GRAS—list or separate regulations. Officials say they don't know of any specific additives included in the revocation which are not already formally cleared.

"But it's a pretty safe bet there are some out there we don't know about," said an FDA spokesman.

The action comes on the heels of a report directed by Ralph Nader accusing the Food and Drug Administration of being so lax in additive clearance that the nation's health is endangered.

The FDA directive, published in Thursday's Federal Register, was dated April 2, however, six days before the Nader report was released.

The procedures under which the additives affected by the action were approved are called prior sanctions and status reports.

A spokesman explained that for the 20 years prior to passage of pure food amendments in 1958, food processors notified the FDA they wished to use certain additives in food or in packages which would come in contact with the food.

The FDA, if it felt the additive was safe, wrote a letter permitting its use.

Now the agency has advised processors in possession of the letters that if the additives are not on the GRAS list or included under regulations, their use must cease until the manufacturers submit new data.

President is Learning Business-Labor Hassle

By JOHN CUNNIF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The President of the United States is learning firsthand what all the fuss is about on the business-labor scene. That is, Post Office wages are to rise and so the President seeks an offsetting increase in stamp prices.

This, of course, is just what keeps the inflation spiral spinning. And it is the very problem that business and labor leaders have been complaining about. To stop the spiral, somebody needs to sacrifice. But who?

The situation points up the emptiness of mere rhetoric or good intentions in attacking inflation. Proof that neither helps is the continued increase in wholesale and consumer prices despite the government's anti-inflation efforts.

The guts of the inflation problem are faced when an executive, surrounded by rising costs, still decides not to raise his own prices. The same situation exists when a labor leader seeks less than the optimum.

To hold the price line, the executive knows, is to see his profits drop. To knowingly tolerate such a situation is tantamount to malfeasance. And that is but one step removed from involuntary retirement.

For a union leader to hold the wage line is to anger its members, create dissension in the ranks and provoke an argument over whether he has failed in

Bombs to Be Banned

Record-keeping is a complex occupation related, perhaps, to some of the methods of current gathering of information by census takers.

For instance, it has been established that approximately 200 high-explosive bombs have been set off around the country since January 1969.

These do not account for the thousands of phony bomb scares which have emptied schools and office buildings, delayed the take-offs of airplanes or caused other inconveniences to the public and law enforcement agencies.

Of area interest is the incident this week of a homemade bomb consisting of three and one-half feet of aluminum pipe encasing six sticks of dynamite. It was thrown into the backyard of the Henry County jail at Clinton and but 12 feet from where Sheriff and Mrs. Wilbur Schmidt were sleeping. A dog awakened the sheriff who from a window saw the fuse burning. However it went out before the device exploded. On March 6 several head of the sheriff's cattle were killed, a barn burned and house set on fire on his farm.

Certainly the Clinton bombing attempt is unrelated to any terrorist plot to overthrow America. It is just one of many such incidents where someone has a grudge, like the one in Ohio where a former patient, sore at the police, leveled that department's administrative building and blew himself up at the same time. He had purchased dynamite easily, openly and legally.

Some bombing incidents during the past 15 months were connected with gang wars, race and labor union disputes. But others seem to have little point. One dynamite blast in Cleveland mangled and toppled a massive statue of Rodin's "The Thinker" in a thoughtless manner.

Recent bombings of skyscrapers indicate activity of a lunatic fringe of youthful revolutionaries some of whom in their amateur bomb factories have destroyed themselves in accidental blasts of explosives.

The thought comes to mind that something should be done about the ridiculous ease with which almost anyone can obtain high explosives. Two bills to change this situation have been introduced in Congress. But new state laws to curb the sale and transportation and use of explosives, as well as their illicit manufacture, will do little good if one state passes stringent laws and another does not. What is needed is a model law that can be adopted by every state.

No law or laws, of course, can stop the fanatic who is smart enough and determined enough to build a bomb even if it turns out to be a dud like the one thrown into the Henry county sheriff's backyard.

Judges Also May Have Feet of Clay

WASHINGTON — For 150 years, America's black-gowned judges have sat high on their judicial benches basking in prestige. Admission to their select circle is like joining sort of a gentlemen's Cosa Nostra. They have their own code of omerta, or silence, about what goes on behind their paneled portals.

Now, the spotlight's hot glare upon G. Harrold Carswell, Clement Haynsworth and Abe Fortas has shown that judges may also have feet of clay. When they are caught in wrongdoing, however, they are as evasive as Mafia chieftains.

This column, for instance, reported recently that Chief Justice Warren Burger was involved in an ethical conflict. He is sitting on one of the most venomous cases in Supreme Court history, which grew out of a bitter feud between two federal judges, Alfred Murrah and Stephen Chandler.

Burger failed to disqualify himself from judging the case, despite a personal friendship and other ties with Murrah. The Chief Justice played a backstage role, for instance, in naming Murrah to the $40,000-a-year directorship of the Federal Judicial Center.

This column, of course, sought Burger's comments, but he acted as if it were beneath his dignity to respond. Neither his own office nor the Supreme Court's press office would say a word about what appeared to be not only an obvious conflict but a violation of the American Bar Association's Canons of Judicial Ethics.

—Clark's False Report—

Instead, decent old retired Justice Tom Clark, whom Murrah is succeeding at the Judicial Center, came to Burger's defense. In a letter to this column, he declared flatly but falsely: "Chief Justice Burger took no part in the selection of Judge Murrah."

The same cry was picked up by other judges, lawyers and court officials, who rallied around Burger with all the discipline of a Cosa Nostra family.

But Murrah himself, a crusty Oklahoman, is devoted to the truth. With obvious pain, he conceded to this column that Burger not only was instrumental in his appointment but was his single most important supporter.

"If he hadn't agreed to my appointment, I never would have accepted it. I know it was agreeable with him," Murrah said, his voice strained.

Although he was the main candidate for the job even before Burger came to the Supreme Court in June, 1969, Murrah made clear to friends that he "wouldn't want to come in without his (Burger's) final consent and approval."

When Burger attended a judicial conference at Jackson Lake, Wyo., in July, Murrah huddled with him in the shadow of the Grand Tetons. The

Mines' Above Ground

Euphemistic titles usually have a touch of silliness about them—such as "sanitary engineers" for plumbers, who are really very useful citizens, or "grief therapists" for funeral directors, who have no reason to apologize for their profession, either.

At first glance, "obsolete metalics" sounds like a ridiculous way to describe plain old junk, like worn-out cars and refrigerators, rusted hot water tanks and so on.

But as the Institute of Scrap Iron and Steel says in adopting the term, "obsolete metalics shouldn't be viewed as waste or junk but as an economic resource—mines above ground."

This is exactly what "junk" is—a recyclable economic resource we have too long wasted and neglected in the belief that there was no end to the riches we could extract from the earth and no end to the earth's capacity to reabsorb what we have used and discarded.

If a change in terms can help change our thinking and our practices, it is a very worth-while change indeed.

MONEY CLIPS

Collectors' Vagaries

Collecting is a natural characteristic stimulated by the pride of ownership. And while this may not come as an earthshaking revelation to anyone, we are, nevertheless, rapidly evolving into a nation of collectors.

Barbed wire, bottles, glass insulators, rare paintings, old cars, books or coins and stamps. You name it and somewhere someone collects it. It is a universal human indulgence totally insensitive to sex, age, race, creed or color and probably the last piece of common ground on which there is hope for mankind.

Political enemies and professional opponents have enjoyed each other's company for hours so long as the topic of their conversation did not venture beyond the area of their respective pursuits. They found mutual respect in a friendly exchange of ideas although the topics under discussion varied from a collection of handmade fishing plugs to a nearly complete set of Edwardian hand-painted gold buttons.

But for some uncanny reason few collectors find satisfaction in conformity. They like to stray from the norm by creating a completely new approach in arrangement, housing or display.

Anything that places a different value to their particular effort.

A good example of this is the stamp collector who prefers a continuous series beginning with the first or oldest stamp available and continuing through to more recent and latest dates. Others treasure stamps of rare vintage, which requires fewer stamps but considerably more money.

On the other hand, a coin collector may concern himself with ancient or foreign coinage—or both—while another leans toward old domestics or current proofs. And still another may find a given denomination more to his liking, ignoring all others.

Collectors of old ranch keys and branding irons also differ on the manner in which these items evoke the most pleasure. In some cases the keys are allowed to retain their original coating of rust at the same time commanding a position of respect on an office or den wall. Others are thoroughly cleaned, plated and framed and placed in glass top tables or given a place of prominence as part of the home decor.

Anything worth collecting may become the subject to any one of a dozen or so segments in a particular category and when it ceases to regenerate the collector's enthusiasm, he contrives to make it more appealing.

Either through changing the method of presentation or by adding supporting equipment such as a lock to match historically a ranch or jail key. If the item happens to be a coin or stamp associated with a particular event in history the implementation may consist of companion pieces of the same era or the owner may elect to unite a specific coin with a stamp or a stamp with a coin. This is basically the purpose behind the present first-day covers in which an envelope containing a stamp canceled on the day of issue contains a coin, exposed through a plastic window, that relates to the issuance of the stamp. This is a highly popular product of the 99 Company of San Clemente, Calif., and Jerry Parker Limited of Ladysmith British Columbia, Canada.

In my case, I chose to design a complete set of coin stamps containing the obverse of every coin minted in the United States against a field containing the design and copy as it appears on the reverse—except that each line of print is applied in a horizontal manner rather than the conventional radius.

The Mercury or Liberty head dime, illustrated, shows the obverse with the issuing authority, United States of America, the Fasces, the motto E Pluribus Unum and the denomination occupying their respective positions in the body of the stamp. I liked the idea because it is different. The series is copyrighted but there may come a day when it may take on a strictly commercial attitude.

Just remember, there are no guidelines within which any collector must confine his pursuits, so long as he stays within his social and legal responsibilities. Collecting is both fun and educational.

Exuberant Ed was having a field day at the club. Not only had he been holding good cards but finesses had worked and suits had broken beautifully for him.

Thus his jump to six hearts was almost an automatic bid. We say almost, because he did consider going all the way to seven before settling for six.

West opened the king of diamonds and Ed's exuberance vanished for some time. He studied and studied the hand. Finally the exuberance returned. He reached over to dummy and pulled out the deuce of diamonds. Then he faced his hand on the table and explained to one and all that anyone else would have played dummy's ace of diamonds and wound up going down one or two tricks at the slam contract but he was either going to make the hand or be down three, depending on which defender held the club ace.

He continued, "My Analysis of the lead and Review of the bidding show that West has a spade-diamond two-suiter. My Count of winners shows that I either need some miracle of stupidity to bring home the spade suit or I must find a way to get some club tricks. Old West is far too good a player to chuck his spades away, so the answer to 'How can I make this hand?' must be with the club suit."

"S h u t u p a n d p l a y," growled Old West, who had been losing all day.

Ed complied. He ruffed the diamond, drew trumps, cashed his ace and king of spades just in case East held two of that suit. Then he led his four of clubs and asked, "How about it?"

"You win and I quit," was West's answer.

Mt. Vesuvius erupted in A.D. 79 belching burning lava down its slopes, enveloping the ancient city of Pompeii in southern Italy, says The World Almanac. Within three days, the thriving port had become a huge tomb, burying about 16,000 victims beneath some 20 feet of rock and ash. This tragedy bequeathed to modern man an ancient city in a remarkable state of preservation.

U.S. to Cambodia: Avoid Open War

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — The Nixon administration has quietly made it clear to Lt. Gen. Lon Nol's new Cambodian government not to expect U.S. ground combat forces. They won't be forthcoming.

This doesn't mean American troops won't pursue Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops withdrawing into Cambodia after operations in South Vietnam. It does mean we are determined not to get involved in Cambodia ground operations with American infantrymen.

The Nixon officials in fact have suggested the new Phnom Penh government move cautiously. They have informed the Cambodians that in the Washington view it would be advisable for them to do everything possible to avoid open war with the North Vietnamese-Viet Cong invaders.

Lon Nol knows the realities. But they have been reviewed for him.

His small, lightly armed armies are no match for the well-equipped Communist forces.

A goodly area of Cambodia is occupied by immigrant North Vietnamese families capable of supplying intelligence, organizing underground bases, offering recruits and providing rice and fish to the Red troops.

(Already numbers of these Vietnamese families living in Cambodia have been arrested for organizing and participating in antigovernment riots.)

These civilian Vietnamese, estimated at from 300,000 to 600,000 men, women and children, are concentrated in the rural rice-and fish-producing areas of Cambodia.

The Cambodian forces have little experience in guerrilla war. Lon Nol was educated in the French conventional war tradition. Men who have worked with him say he is psychologically committed to conventional fighting. Without guerrilla psychology and guerrilla experience, operations in areas where so many well-organized North Vietnamese immigrants live would seem next to hopeless.

The Nixon officials therefore have told the Cambodian strongman that in our opinion any military attempt to drive out the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese armies by force could well turn Cambodia into another Laos.

Bluntly, an all-out fight with no prospect of American infantrymen would almost certainly insure disaster for the new government.

These thoughts have been transmitted to the Cambodian government through the U.S. embassy at Phnom Penh.

Administration men aren't certain Lon Nol will heed their advice. Men who know him say he's a gun-ho trooper eager to fight the Communists.

In part, the Nixon administration advice to Cambodia is a result of protest pressures here at home. Getting involved in Cambodia at this time would stir domestic critics, destroy the carefully built downside in the war protest movement.

But the administration decision goes deeper. The Nixon men believe Lon Nol has some very strong weapons:

The first weapon is political. Here is a case of naked North Vietnamese aggression. If kept clear-cut, it can hurt Hanoi deeply in free world and U.S. domestic opinion — on which Ho Chi Minh's successors are depending so deeply for victory in Vietnam. Hanoi cannot be blind to this prospect.

U.S. officials fear the entry of American troops would muddy the issue and thus be self-defeating.

The second weapon is economic. So long as the Communists are held half in and half out, it will be possible for the Cambodians to cut down sharply on deliveries of domestic rice and fish to the enemy troops and on the import of enemy military weapons and ammunitions through Sihanoukville.

The more scrambled and murky the situation in Cambodia, the better the chance of enforcing economic sanctions. It is one thing, for example, to decree that no more weapons will come through Sihanoukville for the Communists. To enforce that ruling is quite a different matter. Certainly it cannot be enforced if the North Vietnamese capture the port in battle.

Psoriasis Controllable But Is Not Curable

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

Q — How effective is methotrexate in the control of psoriasis?

A — This powerful drug is used only in the severest cases with lesions covering the whole body.

The drug may cause mouth ulcers, nausea and cirrhosis of the liver unless used under careful medical supervision.

Q — Are fungus and psoriasis the same?

A — No, but salicylic acid ointments are used in the treatment of both. Some authorities have believed that a fungus was the cause of psoriasis but this has never been proved and experimental attempts to transmit the disease from one person to another have failed.

Q — Would drinking alcohol aggravate psoriasis? Is it ever fatal?

A — No, to both questions.

Mediocrity? Don't Knock It

Sen. Roman Hruska, R-Neb., may have struck a sympathetic nerve when he defended the nomination of Judge G. Harrold Carswell for the U.S. Supreme Court on the grounds that there are a lot of mediocre Americans who deserve representation on the high bench.

A recent help wanted ad in the Wall Street Journal for a "Mediocre Act" drew over 50 replies within a day after it was run. Placed as a gag by Chanko Associates, a New York employment agency, the ad announced:

"Disreputable company has recently acquired obscure widget firm as a tax loss and wishes to continue its unprofitable operation by hiring an inept, apathetic accountant. A disinterested attitude while working for this bewildered management is the key to securing this job. Poisiton offers little and gives less, with probable reduction in your current earnings."

Disastrous Tornado Celebrates 23rd Anniversary

The Sedalia Democrat, Friday, April 10, 1970—7

WOODWARD, Okla. (AP) — The clock on the wall of the telephone office read 8:42, but the operators were too busy answering calls and glancing out the window at the boiling clouds to notice.

Just a short distance away, some 300 persons sat in the Woodward theater and watched "Rage in Heaven." On the western edge of town, a car worked its way toward a roadside restaurant and its occupants hoped they would get there before it started raining.

For the telephone operators, the car occupants, the moviegoers — for everyone in the small town — the exact time, unimportant before, would be remembered as long as there was life.

A tornado which had started in the Texas Panhandle and left a trail of terror across the heart of Oklahoma's wheat and cattle country smashed without warning into the sleepy little town.

Five minutes later, 95 persons were dead. More than 1,000 were injured. And what once had been a thriving community was a collection of rubble and bodies.

It was April 9, 1947 — 23 years ago Thursday — when the roar of a hundred freight trains filled the night air over Woodward. It was the worst tornado ever to hit Oklahoma.

Today, Woodward is again a thriving community, a trade center for northwestern Oklahoma. There are twice as many people here now, about 10,000 total, and most work in ranching, farming or oil associated industries.

Tom Hieronymus, a former assistant U.S. district attorney, was driving toward a roadside restaurant when the tornado hit.

"All at once, my car wouldn't go any more," he said shortly after the disaster. "It came to a complete stop and the engine died. We could feel something beating on the car. I thought it was hail."

"I rolled down the window and looked out to see if there was any damage. Not a house was standing as far as I could see. Then people came running from everywhere — bleeding, covered with mud, many with hardly any clothes on — all crying for help."

Chan Guffey was editor of the Woodward Press in 1947 and he and his wife were sitting in their upstairs apartment when the storm hit.

"We tried to get in the basement but the door was padlocked. We threw ourselves on the ground and waited. The front of the house caved in. The roof went off over our heads."

"We didn't hear a thing falling. The noise of the wind was too loud."

The storm first hit the little town of White Deer, Tex. It roared into Glazier, into Higgins, then crossed the Oklahoma line and hit Gage, Shattuck, White Horse, Mooreland and Woodward before moving into Kansas.

A total of 169 persons were killed. Property damage was estimated at $9.8 million.

And a ragged path ranging from 25 yards to 1½ miles in width scarred 221 miles of countryside.

Action Finally Beginning On Toxic Mercury Mess

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers and manufacturers poured billions of pounds of a toxic chemical mercury into the nation's food and water supply for years while the government did nothing to stop them.

Although there had been significant and early warnings from abroad about the danger of the pollution, federal authorities did not stir until three children in New Mexico were severely injured recently from eating mercury-contaminated pork and after mercury-tainted fish showed up in the Great Lakes.

From 1964 until early this year, when it began removing some unneeded mercury pesticides, the Agriculture Department rejected every objection — hundreds of them — from the Food and Drug Administration to the registration of the chemical.

And then, according to a department official, it acted "only because of the New Mexico incident and the resulting public pressure."

The FDA objections were brushed aside, the official said, "because they offered no substantiating evidence of their opinions."

During that time, mercury poisoning from contaminated grain accounted for 35 deaths and 321 injury cases in Iraq in 1961, four deaths and 34 injury cases in West Pakistan in 1963 and 20 deaths and 45 injury cases in Guatemala during 1966.

A mercury discharge from an industrial plant in Japanese waters contaminated sea food, resulting in 43 deaths and uncounted birth defects.

The facts on mercury, as compiled by a recent government pesticide commission, are these:

Some 5.3 million pounds of mercury are used annually by industry, 800,000 pounds going in manufacture of pesticides.

Mercury is a permanent ele-

Expresses Concern About Curriculum

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Radical sex education in public schools is the result of teaching evolution, Dr. John Blanchard Jr. told the final session of the National Association of Evangelicals Thursday.

Blanchard, executive director of the National Association of Christian Schools, said the new sex education does not teach moral or historical guidance, but follows a "do your thing" philosophy.

"If your child tells you that he has been selected to the advanced honor literature society," Blanchard said, "I beg of you, please get a list of books he will read. Then read them yourself. You'll be surprised at the philosophy used to undermine his spiritual heritage."

Plan Seminar For Employers At Juco Here

The Sedalia Department of Industrial Development and State Fair Community College will sponsor an employer's seminar at the college on Wednesday.

The purpose of the seminar is to acquaint various employers in the Sedalia area with the programs and services offered by both the Industrial Department and the college's placement services.

Industrial development director Bill Hall said, "It is important that we acquaint not just local industries and their personnel directors with the services offered by the department, but all who employ people in the community. The programs offered at State Fair fit hand in glove with employers in the area, and a number of young people will be available to the employment market this spring. We hope that all employers will take advantage of these trained people for better efficiency in their operation."

The seminar is open to all employers in the Sedalia area. It will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the college library.

Hall also said that another seminar will be held for employers in the southern part of the college district at a later date with other sponsorship.

Royals Win Again Over Oakland A's

KANSAS CITY (AP) — John McNamara, the rookie Oakland Athletics manager, asked the question rhetorically, then answered it himself.

"Is their pitching that good, or have we over-estimated our hitters? Only time will tell. But we think we've got good hitters."

McNamara was searching for an explanation for the A's hitting drought in losing 2-0 and 3-1 to the Kansas City Royals in their season-opening series which concluded Thursday night. The A's went 21 innings without scoring from the sixth inning of a 6-4 victory Tuesday to the ninth inning Thursday.

"You have to give their pitchers credit," McNamara added, "but we believe we'll hit better than that. Some of our hitters are pressing a little."

Most noticeable of the A's silent bats after a 6-4 victory in Tuesday's opener was that of slugging star Reggie Jackson. He got only one single in 10 times at bat and drove in just one run in the series.

"I think Reggie is trying to find himself," McNamara said. "His fouling pitches off he should be hitting."

Bill Butler and Dave Morehead teamed up Thursday night to put the whammy on the A's hitters, limiting them to five hits and blanking them until the ninth inning when Bob Oliver's error opened the way for an unearned run.

Butler, wild but tough when he had to be, pitched six shutout innings, then developed a blister on the index finger of his pitching hand which forced him out of the game. Morehead finished up, getting touched for two hits, including one by Felipe Alou with two out in the ninth that drove in Oakland's only run and snapped the club record shutout string.

Dick Drago blanked the A's 2-0 on four hits Wednesday night.

"I have to pitch two or three times before I get the callouses to cover the whammy on the A's hitters, limiting them to five hits and blanking them until the ninth inning when Bob Oliver's error opened the way for an unearned run.

Morehead, making a comeback from arm troubles, pitched more than two innings for the first time since last June 2.

The Royals got to loser Chuck Dobson for two runs in the first on Pat Kelly's bunt single. Ed Kirkpatrick's double and a wild pitch, then Jimmy Campanis hit his first American League home run in the fifth.

Royals Manager Charlie Metzro confessed his pitching in the opening series surprised him—pleasantly.

"You're always surprised when your pitching stops a club like that, but we know our pitching has to be our strength," Metzro said Thursday night after his Kansas City Royals stopped the Oakland A's 3-1 and set a club record of 21 consecutive scoreless innings.

"Is their pitching that good," wondered Oakland's McNamara, "or have we overestimated our hitters? Only time will tell, but we think we've got good hitters."

They weren't in evidence as Kansas City took two of three games from the A's, including Wednesday night's four-hit shutout by Dick Drago.

Slugging Reggie Jackson was held to one single and fanned four times in 10 at-bats. Sal Bando was three for 12. Felipe Alou three for 14 and Don Mincher two for eight. That figures out to .205, so obviously the meat of the Oakland order was gravy for the KC twirlers.

Elsewhere in the American League, Baltimore crushed Cleveland 13-1. Minnesota downed the Chicago White Sox 6-4 and the New York Yankees edged Boston 4-3. California, Detroit, Milwaukee and Washington were idle.

Soviets Grab Silver Medal In Ice Hockey

TAMPERE, Finland (AP) — The Soviet Union added a silver medal to its collection Thursday — and wound up with a runaway victory in the sixth World University winter games.

The Russians, who finished second in the final event, the ice hockey tournament, Thursday wound up with 13 gold medals, 16 silver and 8 bronze for a total of 79 points.

Second was the United States with 5 gold, 5 silver and 1 bronze for 26 points. Czechoslovakia, which beat the Soviet Union in Thursday's hockey, was third with three gold medals for 9 points.

Four of the champions in the last winter games at Innsbruck, Austria, in 1968 successfully defended their titles: speed skaters Erhard Keller of West Germany, on 500-meters, and Russian Alexander Chekulaev, the two longest distance—5,000 and 10,000 meters.

Also, Janna Elistratova of the Soviet Union in the women's 10 kilometers cross-country skiing and the Russian 40 kilometers cross-country men ski relay team.

Roy White and Bobby Mercer, the Yankees' two poorest spring training hitters, found the home run range as the Yanks split their series with the Red Sox.

White homered in the first and Mercer's three-run off Ray Culp in the sixth wiped out a 3-1 Boston lead. Jack Aker, unscored on all spring, bailed starter and winner Fritz Peterson out of a seventh-inning jam and hurled three rounds of one-hitter ball.

CINCINNATI (AP) — The 1971 National AAU Men's and Women's Short Course Indoor Swimming Championships will be held April 9-12 at the University of Washington.

Officials of the AAU also said Thursday night the 1971 event would serve as the trials for the Pan-American Games.

Masters Lead Goes to Aaron

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Noted also-ran Tommy Aaron jumped out of the gate a leader in the Masters' first round with Gene Littler and Bert Yancey hot on his trail, but famed charger Arnold Palmer died by his own sword.

"I shot dead for each hole—like I always have—and was penalized for it," fumed Palmer. "It's not in my blood to hit shots soft and hope they happen to trickle up near the hole."

Aaron tamed Augusta National's diamond-hard greens with a four-under-par 68 and his closest pursuers were one shot off the pace. Grouped at 70 were Dan and R. H. Sikes along with Chi Chi Rodriguez, Charlie Coody and muscular Bob Lunn.

Jack Nicklaus, a three-time winner, stayed close with a 71 along with 1969's leading money winner, Frank Beard. South Africa Gary Player got off slowly with a 74.

"Good-looking shots turned into nothing all day," said four-time champion Palmer. "The ball skidded across the greens and I found myself looking back at the hole from behind the green."

The rye grass that sprouts in many of Augusta National's rolling fairways failed to trickle Palmer's fancy. "It makes shots miserable to hit," he said. "If I owned a golf course with fairways like that, I'd plow them up."

Palmer was in an unexciting tie for 32nd place with the likes of Hsieh Yung-ye of Nationalist China.

"I've never been famous for my short game," he said, "but I didn't hit them badly this time. They looked perfect heading to the green and then bounced out of sight."

As the field began to settle into the second round of the 34th Masters, Palmer's chances of a fifth green jacket were slender at best.

"I've been playing this game many years and never saw a caddie cheat," said two-time U.S. Open King Casper. "The cars are more likely to kick a golfer's ball in the rough than a caddie."

Sikes, a nine-year tour veteran and a lawyer, agreed after his 70 in Thursday's opening Masters round.

"These caddies know if they are cheating and get caught that their bag-carrying days are over," he said. "I think Gene was just trying to grab some headlines."

Sarazen played in the Masters' first round Thursday and shot an 81.

"Gene says regular caddies give top players too much advantage," Sikes said. "What does he want to do, make this a handicap tournament?"

"Maybe he'd like the long hitters to tee off 50 yards behind the short knockers. Maybe he'd like a foot-wide cup for the bad putters."

The two stars took special issue with Sarazen's claim that tour caddies are not college men, steeped in the sport's traditions.

"Just because a man can't go to college, does that make him dishonest?" asked Sikes. "If that was so, well, two-thirds of America would be dishonest as hell."

Caddies who carry regular bags on tour will do tasks such as marching off yardage to help their golfers select the correct clubs. They check pin placements well ahead of tee-off time. Some even double as caddies, keeping the player's wardrobe in tow during travels.

"I have 13 dependents," he said in broken English. "All of them have 140 IQ or better, except me. I'm under 100 . . . and I support them all."

Nicklaus said he "played better than my 71 indicates. I like the greens hard because I feel it hurts inexperienced players more than it does me," he said.

"Of course, stopping the ball close to the hole is something else."

The field was due to be sliced to the low 44 scores and ties after today's second round. The cutoff has never been lower than four-over par 148 and—according to the first day's results—could soar as high as 151.

Sikes said there are about 30 to 35 regular caddies on the tour. "I would guess that those who are good enough to work for the top 10 players earn about $10,000 a year," he said.

"If you face a new caddie each week, it means another hour or two you must spend teaching him the trade," Casper said. "We're tough on our regular caddies and have been known to scold them. How can you jump on some unqualified 17-year-old kid?"

DEAR POLLY—I think the safest way for Ruth to remove glue from her metal kitchen cabinet is to scrape it off carefully with a razor blade. (Polly's note: Use a single-edged, safety razor blade and be very careful not to gouge into the metal.) I had this problem with my bathroom vanity and the razor blade worked beautifully.—JOSIE

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—I wonder if any readers could tell me how to make handcrafted flowers of burlap. I know it is cut into squares and then threaded out to give a lacy effect. I need someone to tell me how to proceed.—MRS. J. J.

DEAR POLLY>To get the attention of a deaf person in another part of the house, arrange a signal for turning on a light in a certain location. This saves going after them. They see the light and come to you.—GAY

DEAR POLLY—My canned-goods cupboard is so high I can only see the front row. This row holds only one of a kind. I turn a can upside down if there is one like it just behind. If a can in this front row is right-side up, I know there is no duplicate behind it and it is time to buy some more.—MRS. L. R. B.

DEAR POLLY—I hope you do not mind a major sending in a Pointer. It is one of my pet peeves that there are very few of the many detergent boxes that can be put in a garbage can. Run hot water in them and get out the last of the soap. Then they will fold down and roll up and take only a small space in the can. Certainly makes the wash look nicer.—MAJOR D. A. H.

Of course, we are all delighted to hear from a major.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—Those of us who carry five or 10 pounds too much find our girdles cut us in half while putting on our stockings. I suggest that you try putting stockings on first and then pull on the girdle. There will be less huffing and puffing.

When knitting, rather than tie knots in the work, bring in a new thread and knit along with the end of the old thread for about five stitches. Let the tiny ends fall loose inside whatever you are knitting. This makes a good, tight and comfortable bond.

Instead of emptying a five-pound bag of flour into your canister, just cut off the bag top, place the whole thing in the canister and use it from the bag. Saves all kinds of dust, spills, etc., made getting the flour into the canister.—JULIA

"The census takers sure have it soft—imagine, you work only every 10 years!"

Nixon Evokes Controversy on High Court Picks

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has touched off a new round of political controversy over his Supreme Court nominations, asserting the Senate has forced him to bypass the South in his quest to put a conservative jurist on the high court.

"I have reluctantly concluded," the President said Thursday, "that it is not possible to get confirmation of a judge on the Supreme Court of any man who believes in the strict construction of the Constitution as I do, if he happens to come from the South."

"This is the most damning evidence of a Southern strategy we've had since the term was first put in print," protested Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., a leader in the fight against two Southern judges rejected by the Senate: G. Harrold Carswell and Clement F. Haynsworth.

"I find it incredible that the President would make such a statement," chimed in Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., another leader against the Nixon nominees.

But Nixon's statement brought nods of approval from senators who stood behind Carswell and Haynsworth.

"In view of the present makeup of the Senate, it would be very difficult to confirm any judicial conservative nominee from the South," said Sen. Roman L. Hruska, R-Neb.

No matter who Nixon nominated from the South, "the powerful blacks and labor unions" would rise up against him, Sen. Allen Ellender, D-La., said.

Nixon met briefly with newsmen Thursday, a day after the Senate voted 51 to 45 to reject his nomination of Carswell, a 50-year-old federal appeals judge from Tallahassee, Fla. He told them: "My next nominee will be from outside the South and he will fulfill the criteria of strict constructionist with judicial experience either from a federal bench or on a state appeals court," he said.

Bayh said later the President was telling the South his two previous nominees were picked solely because they were from that region. That means, Bayh said, the President is trying "to feather the political nest of Richard Nixon" rather than fill a high court vacancy created by Abe Fortas' resignation last May.

Two Southern senators who voted against Carswell after supporting Haynsworth also disagreed with Nixon.

"If the President's second nominee had been as competent as his first, he'd have been confirmed without difficulty," said Sen. William B. Spong Jr., D-Va. He said a Southern court member would benefit both the court and the country.

"It's quite wrong to attribute the opposition to regionalism," Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., said. He said both Carswell and Haynsworth developed "liabilities that the President didn't know about when he nominated them."

Both Spong and Fulbright voted for Haynsworth, a South Carolina federal judge, when he was defeated for the seat five months ago.

Fulbright's vote against Carswell triggered another controversy—this one involving Mrs. Martha Mitchell, wife of Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, and also a native of Arkansas.

Mrs. Mitchell called on the Arkansas Gazette during a long-distance telephone call to the paper at about 2 a.m. Thursday—the Gazette reported.

Mrs. Mitchell admitted she made the call and urged Fulbright's defeat but she denied using the word "crucify." Fulbright said he regretted "her rather flamboyant language" but indicated he didn't take the attack too seriously.

The Fulbright-Mrs. Mitchell incident typified the intensity of the controversy swirling over the court vacancy.

The President's statement on the Supreme Court vacancy is an affront to the people of an entire region," said Lawrence O'Brien, chairman of the Democratic National Committee. He said the President had chosen to ignore many distinguished Southern jurists.

"From the very beginning, we have made clear that we could support a Southern strict constructionist who met the standards spelled out in part by the President himself—namely that our judges be dedicated to the great principles of civil rights and be men of excellence," Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., said.

Sen. Joseph D. Tydings, D-Md., called Nixon's statement unwarranted. "A competent, qualified Southerner with a proper record could be confirmed by the Senate," he said.

In a statement issued after his meeting with newsmen, Nixon said he will submit his next nomination "in the very near future," apparently rejecting a proposal to wait until after the November elections. "A President should not leave that vacancy on the court when it can be filled," he said.

He said he had asked the attorney general to submit to him a list of qualified judges on state and federal courts who share his views. He said he had discussed the vacancy with Mitchell Wednesday night during a cruise on the Potomac River on a Navy yacht.

Seasonal Ratings Scramble

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The annual television ratings race is a contest which each year reaches the significance and suspense of a soap opera.

Further, it is as intricate and as complex as one of those long-running stories, with all the subplots, the ploys, the intrigues, and all the entrances and exits.

It has for years been played to the hilt, with the networks milking publicity from every favorable turn. It is of no small importance that a statistician with fast pencil can make anything short of an unmitigated disaster look like a triumph.

Last year's ratings race ended in a bitter feud between NBC and CBS. NBC said it was a tie. CBS said it had won for the 14th straight year. Lost in the crossfire was the fact that the difference was within the margin of error.

The battle this year appeared headed for another showdown. But suddenly, this week, NBC decided to de-escalate.

As expected, NBC declared the season over as of March 22. Unexpectedly, it issued only its own season Nielsen ratings. The figure was 20.2. It declined to report the ratings for ABC and CBS.

"I think what we're doing is running our own race," said Paul Klein, NBC's affable vice president for research. "We're just not holding the stop watch on the other guys. They don't like us keeping their running time and we don't like them keeping ours."

It is simply one more twist in the plot? Probably, but even so the contest goes on. Klein said.

"We're still in the ratings race for advertising. That's a fact of life."

The March 22 ending is something new, announced a few months ago. NBC said it premieres its shows ahead of ABC and CBS and goes into reruns earlier. Traditionally, the season has ended at the beginning of daylight saving time.

NBC's early premieres got it off to a fast start this year, while CBS, normally a slow starter, has been even slower than ever catching up. It was not until the new year when Michael H. Dann, CBS programming vice president and its chief protagonist in the ratings race, hatched "Operation 100" that CBS began to close the gap.

Operation 100, named after the number of days in which CBS had to catch up, was a daring plan involving the use of specials that were not really special. In fact, some were shown in past seasons on NBC.

But it turned the trick, although CBS has not yet overtaken NBC. But there are those who suggested that it scared NBC enough to prompt its decision to end the season March 22.

The ratings race too often has resulted in bad programming. Quality shows get shoved out of the way by formula comedies and hokey shows.

Touchy Rescue

An injured mountain climber is brought down a ledge of sheer granite 2,000 feet above the Yosemite Valley by rescuers Tuesday. Gov. Ronald Reagan watched through binoculars as a team of 24 rangers and mountain climbers in the Yosemite, Calif., area brought the climber to safety. The climber had earlier broken his leg while scaling the mountain with a companion. (UPI)

Seeking Cutoff On Costs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Ways and Means Committee is considering a proposal to control the soaring costs of government health programs by limiting doctor's fees to those charged by most physicians — not the highest-priced ones.

The limitation proposal, described as the "75th doctor plan," is reported to be gaining favor at closed-door meetings of the committee, although no votes have been taken.

Fees charged by doctors in a community for comparable services would be tabulated and the limit set at the highest level charged by any doctor in the lower 75 per cent.

There is no fixed ceiling now on payments to doctors under medicare, the Social Security program of health care for persons 65 or older, or medicaid, a similar plan for low-income persons.

The committee also is trying to work out a system for fixing hospital charges in advance.

If the medicare and medicaid problems—the only ones considered so far in several weeks of work on the Social Security bill—can be solved, the committee is expected to meet its goal of sending a bill to the House by the end of this month.

Proposed revisions in the main Social Security law, believed to be relatively non-controversial, include higher payments to widows of retired workers and adjustment of some provisions that now favor women over men retirees.

Southerners Previously Represented on Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — Since the birth of the republic, the South has been a prime producer of Supreme Court justices.

In announcing he will look outside the South for his next nominee in the aftermath of the Senate's rejection of South Carolina's Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. and Georgia-born G. Harrold Carswell, President Nixon noted Thursday that only one of the current eight justices is from Dixie.

He is Justice Hugo L. Black of Alabama, the third person from that state to serve on the court.

In all, 40 Supreme Court justices have come from Southern and border states, with Kentucky atop the list with nine judges—seven of whom came after the Civil War.

Twenty-seven states have been represented on the court in the listings for the nation's 98 justices.

BUSINESS NEWS

Ed Kehde, owner of the Dog N Suds Drive-In, 1611 South Limit, was recently awarded a 15-year service award by James Hocter, president of Dog N Suds Inc.

The award was for Kehde's outstanding performance as a Dog N Suds franchisee.

Six members of the Bill Greer Motors sales staff will be honored for outstanding sales performance last year at a banquet this month.

C. V. Toussaint, Ford Division's Kansas City district sales manager, said the average 300-500 Club member, those being recognized at the banquet, sold nearly $500,000 worth of automotive merchandise in 1969.

Four Tennessee representatives have served on the court—three of them since the Civil War. Two men were appointed to the court from North Carolina—both prior to the war.

New Hampshire, Connecticut and Minnesota have had three justices apiece, while Maine, Indiana, Michigan and Illinois all placed two men on the court.

States with one representative to serve on the high bench are Iowa, Rhode Island, Louisiana, Texas, California, Kansas and Colorado.

As for the present court, Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, Nixon's first and only nominee to win Senate approval, is a Minnesota native, as is Justice William O. Douglas.

Justice Potter Stewart was born in Michigan, Justice John M. Harlan in Illinois, Justice William J. Brennan Jr. in New Jersey, and Justice Byron R. White in Colorado. Justice Thurgood Marshall, the only Negro on the tribunal, is a Maryland native.

They are operated with what are called "nonappropriated funds"—money generated by military personnel and their families through patronage rather than funds provided by Congress.

The new regulation is the latest in a series of reforms since the NCO club scandals surfaced last summer.

Among other things, Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird has ordered that service clubs be audited at least once a year.

The school board earlier submitted a desegregation plan that was approved by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Then the board discarded the plan.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's statement Thursday that he feels the South is inadequately represented on the Supreme Court came less than a year after he told newsmen geographical considerations would play no part in his selection of justices.

The President noted Thursday that only one justice is from the South, although 25 per cent of the population lives there, and he added: "The South is entitled to proper representation on the court."

Last May 22, speaking to newsmen informally after Senate confirmation of Chief Justice Warren Burger, the President said he made that appointment and would make other ones based on the consideration of their competence. Nixon said he would see to it that judges or people who might be qualified, representing all segments of the country, come before him. But in the final analysis, the President said, the court will not be used for the purpose of racial, religious or geographical balance while he is in office.

Guests Abuse The Host's Hospitality

Dear Ann Landers: My sister-in-law telephoned us last week from somewhere in Arkansas. She said they were driving to the Coast and would be in Louisville "in a few days." I offered them the hospitality of our home BEFORE she told me they had another family with them — seven people in all. It was too late to back out.

We expected them on Wednesday — certainly no later than Thursday. When they didn't show up we decided they had bypassed Louisville so we accepted an invitation for Friday evening. We got home at midnight and were shocked to find the whole tribe asleep on the porch furniture.

My sister-in-law opened up a mouth that could be heard a mile away. She insisted we had been informed of their coming and should have been home. (They had car trouble.) We are now strained. Were we wrong? — Ky Woes

Dear Ky: Since your guests were not specific about the arrival time you were under no obligation to be at home waiting. Forget it. With luck they may be sufficiently annoyed to go to a motel next time.

Dear Ann Landers: Have you ever dealt with problems that arise when a married couple works in the same organization? If so, I have not seen it. We have two couples in this office who are ruining the morale of the entire organization.

Exhibit A and B met in the accounting department last year. They fell in love and were married in December. They are still honeymooning and her typing looks like she left her brains in Niagara Falls. He calls her Pussy Baby and she calls him Cuddle Bug. They haven't been to work on time in three months. Since he is head of the department, nobody can say a word.

The second couple is something else. They've been married ten years and are known as the Battling Bearcats. When they fight (which is every day), you can hear them all over the office. Sometimes she gets mad and leaves her desk for two hours. Her work must be done by the other girls and they resent it plenty.

Please comment on married couples working together. And I hope you say it's a bum idea, because it is. — A Witness Who Speaks for 30

Dear Wit: Some married couples manage well in the same organization, but generally it's not a good idea. In addition to the problems you describe, too much togetherness can put the dead hand on a relationship.

Dear Ann Landers: Our 15-year-old daughter belongs to a club. There are 25 members — all girls between 15 and 17.

Musical Mouthful Distracting

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A Daytona Beach housewife who has been receiving musical radio signals through her teeth has a mouthful of new fillings today, but still may be driven to extraction.

The woman, who agreed to talk about it only if her name wasn't used, said Wednesday she had all her fillings but one replaced by plastic. She said a metal filling was left because it involved a root and might have to be pulled.

The music stopped for three days. She had been picking up the signals since the night of March 16 and had been sleeping in a motel out of range of her neighborhood to get peace.

Then her teeth tuned up again, much weaker than before, but still there.

Electronics experts say they believe the music is being transmitted by a person using a wireless phonograph to send signals to another part of his house.

A dentist, Dr. J. H. Long, explained that two metals such as gold and amalgam fillings, plus acid in saliva, could set up a potential receiving system such as the woman's mouth.

She placed an advertisement in a newspaper urging whoever had been playing the songs she was hearing to identify himself. The numbers include "Long Way to Tipperary" and "Rambling Rose," she said.

The woman said the ad brought a flood of calls, "but nothing concrete."

Rights Organizers Hail Judge's Loss

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

While his supporters condemned the rejection of Judge G. Harrold Carswell for the Supreme Court, civil rights groups hailed the defeat. Others called on President Nixon to nominate a man with eminent qualifications and wide support.

Gov. John J. McKeithen of Louisiana termed the rejection of the Florida judge discrimination against the South. He sent a telegram to President Nixon Wednesday urging him to nominate Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., or U.S. Circuit Court Judge J. P. Coleman of Mississippi.

"This is a great victory for America," said Leonard H. Carter, San Francisco regional director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. "There is still hope in our system of government. We need not yield to despair and violence but must continue to work for justice and equality."

Wallace Peterson, a Democratic candidate for the seat of Sen. Roman Hruska, R-Neb., said: "The turning point in the President's fight undoubtedly came when Sen. Hruska made his defense of mediocrity."

Hruska, a Carswell supporter, had said, "Even if he (Carswell) was mediocre, there are a lot of mediocre judges and people and lawyers. They are entitled to a little representation, aren't they, and a little chance?"

Whitney M. Young Jr., executive director of the Urban League, said: "Our faith in the row-mind individuals who led the opposition and who are as bigoted as they unfairly accused Judge Carswell of being."

The defeat was called "tangible evidence of sectionalism at its worst" by Alabama Gov. Albert Brewer.

Ten Arrested in Vain Attempt to Open Integration Road

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP) — Deputy U. S. marshals arrested Thursday 10 men—four aides to Gov. Claude Kirk, a sheriff and five deputies—in a vain effort to open the road to integration for Manatee County schools. But the men refused to go to jail, and Kirk's aides remained in control of the county schools.

Kirk said in Tallahassee: "If marshals have arrested my people, I'm going to go down there and put them marshals in the county jail."

The deputy marshals took no prisoners in the school administration building. They said the 10 men were under arrest for obstructing justice by blocking the marshals from executing a federal court order.

Deputy Marshall John Barr of Tampa said he considered the men under arrest although they were not in custody. "There will be more arrests later," he said.

Outside the redbrick building that used to be a junior high school, area residents staged a march and a sit-in to protest Kirk's blockage of busing for integration in the county. "Freedom Isn't Free," they sang.

"We intend to carry out the federal district court order," Asst. U.S. Atty. Oscar Blassingame of Tampa said.

U.S. District Judge Benjamin Krentzman issued an order Tuesday for Kirk to stop interfering with the operation of schools in this Gulf Coast county. He summoned Kirk to court Friday to show why he should not be held in contempt for blocking desegregation. The order for Kirk to get out of the school case included a ban on his education aide, William Meloy.

The marshals arrested—but failed to physically capture—Meloy and Kirk aides Robert Hoffman, Lloyd Hagaman and Dick Warner; Manatee County Sheriff Richard W. Weitzenfeld, and five of his deputies.

Hagaman and Weitzenfeld took refuge in the office of School Supt. Jack Davidson who Kirk suspended on Sunday and again on Wednesday. Twenty-five Florida highway patrolmen in riot gear took up posts in Davidson's waiting room, but Kirk later had the troopers go home and change into civilian clothes.

Manatee County reported 1,900 pupils absent Thursday, 11 per cent of the 17,000 member student body. The school system loses $1.70 a day in state and federal funds for each absent pupil.

Says Revenue Sources Must be Investigated

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Gov. Warren E. Hearnes cannot blame opponents of the defeated state income tax increase for a reduction of state services if he refuses to consider alternate revenue measures, four legislators who opposed the income tax hike said Thursday.

Hearnes has said he interpreted the income tax defeat as an indication the people are opposed to any tax increase and he would not include revenue measures on his call for the special legislative session beginning Wednesday.

The bipartisan quartet of legislators, Sens. John J. Johnson of Afton, Richard M. Webster of Carthage, and Robert A. Young of St. Ann and Rep. R. J. King of Clayton, House Republican minority leader, took another view.

"I don't agree that the voters said they do not want any kind of tax increase," Johnson said. "I think they said 'clean up some of the things wrong with government and don't ask for so much money.'"

Johnson, a Democrat, and Webster, a Republican, said they felt the tax legislation was defeated because of the governor's insistence on increasing the personal income tax.

Young, a Democrat, said he would be interested in introducing legislation to increase the corporate income tax.

"Personally," King said, "I think the governor ought to open up the session on tax legislation. If there is a need, I'm willing to raise whatever revenue is necessary to keep state services going."

Webster added: "Hearnes is not going to be able to say we caused a cutback in state services because we opposed the tax bill if he is unwilling to compromise and permit us to raise the money some other way."

To Permit Officials To Enter Cambodia

SAIGON (AP) — American officials in Vietnam provinces next to Cambodia have been given permission to cross the border for informal meetings with Cambodian authorities, a U.S. spokesman said Thursday.

His statement came after correspondents on the border learned that Cambodian local officials threw open the frontier west of Saigon Thursday to South Vietnamese troops, who moved in and began building fortifications.

A U.S. officer was seen at a newspaper to increase the corporate income tax.

"Personally," King said, "I think the governor ought to open up the session on tax legislation. If there is a need, I'm willing to raise whatever revenue is necessary to keep state services going."

King said he thought a new effort to raise new revenue should be teamed with reorganization of the state Revenue Department and investment of intangible tax revenue in interest-bearing bank accounts.

In Jefferson City Hearnes said Thursday he has no plans for broadening the special session call beyond the budget for the 1970-71 fiscal year.

Webster wrote the Democratic governor he regretted Hearnes' decision not to meet with Senate Republicans.

Consider Army Cases For Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pentagon lawyers searching for ways to prosecute former soldiers in the alleged My Lai massacre are considering the possibility of asking Congress to hand such cases to the federal courts.

This is one of three major courses of action now being discussed.

The other two approaches, disclosed previously, involve courts-martial or military commissions under untested sections of military laws.

Twenty-two former soots under Army investigations in connection with mass slayings of Vietnamese civilians at My Lai hamlet and Song My village on March 16, 1968.

Thirteen officers and enlisted men still in uniform have been charged with murder and other offenses and two other soldiers are under investigation.

While the spokesman sought to minimize the military significance of American officials meeting with Cambodians, it appeared the policy was part of a U.S. effort to establish friendly relationships along the border that would turn to the allies' fighting advantage.

Since the change in the Cambodian government last month, U.S. officials have been cautious about giving any hint of American activity inside Cambodia. They frequently have denied that U.S. troops or planes have made attacks inside Cambodia.

The difficulty is, as one lawyer expressed it, that "we are in murky legal waters."

Fifteen years ago the Supreme Court ruled out military courts-martial for former servicemen in invalidating one section of the Code of Military Justice.

Reinforcements Battle To Break Enemy Seige

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese reinforcements battled to within a few hundred yards of Dak Seang Thursday in a drive to try to break the nine-day enemy siege of the battered Special Forces camp.

As fighting swirled around the outpost, allied headquarters reported the enemy's nationwide offensive last week sent U.S. battlefield deaths to 138, the highest level in six months and inflicted the heaviest government losses in more than two years.

Associated Press correspondent Jay Sharburt reported from the central highlands that government forces were in close combat with entrenched North Vietnamese infantry around Dak Seang.

The camp, defended by 400 irregulars led by U.S. Green Berets, is eight miles from the Laotian and Cambodian borders and 277 miles northeast of Saigon.

Enemy positions south of the outpost were pounded with up to 600 tons of bombs dropped by B-52 Stratofortresses in the past 24 hours, spokesmen said.

Tactical fighter-bombers joined the air assault against an estimated 2,000 North Vietnamese who have surrounded the camp since April 1st and battered it with more than 2,000 rockets and mortars.

South Vietnamese sources disclosed that North Vietnamese artillerymen also were firing 105mm and 82mm guns at the camp from across the Laotian border.

About 100 rocket and mortar shells slammed into Dak Seang overnight. A sapper attack was launched against a nearby camp, Fire Base Tango, where South Vietnamese artillery supports Dak Seang. The ground assault was followed by a mid-day shelling.

About 3,000 South Vietnamese troops have been thrown into the fighting. Government spokesmen said the enemy appeared to be moving in reinforcements.

Other reported fighting flared along the Laotian and Cambodian frontiers, the central coastal plain and just below the demilitarized zone.

At least nine Americans, seven South Vietnamese and 67 enemy were reported killed in a dozen clashes and 43 rocket and mortar attacks. Wounded were 72 Americans and 64 government troops.

Allied spokesmen said that in the week ending at midnight Saturday, 138 Americans, 754 South Vietnamese and 3,336 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong were killed in action.

The enemy deaths were the most reported in a single weekly reporting period since last Aug. 16. The toll among government forces was the second highest of the war, surpassed only during the first week of the Communist command's TET offensive of February 1968, when 784 South Vietnamese soldiers were killed.

The totals raised U.S. casualties in the war to 41,274 killed and 272,281 wounded. South Vietnamese losses now stand at 103,261 dead and 212,086 wounded. Allied forces claim to have slain 618,061 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops.

Employees Are Dropped From Airline Payrolls

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Trans World Airlines announced Thursday that it has lopped 1,000 employees from its payroll, the second air carrier to announce layoffs as a result of the multimillion dollar sick-call strike of air traffic controllers.

Delays of up to 1 hour were reported, however, in both those cities and in Philadelphia, San Francisco and Los Angeles.

In announcing its layoffs, United Air Lines, which began laying off workers earlier in the week, said its work force reduction reached 700 as the job action entered its 16th day.

A federal judge in Cleveland, meanwhile, proposed a national moratorium on court action against the strikers, but at the same time another federal judge in Kansas City, Kan., issued a preliminary injunction against absentee controllers in his jurisdiction.

The Federal Aviation Administration reported a slight improvement in the controller job situation, and said it was easing some of the restrictions that had been imposed on flights in New York and Chicago.

Delays of up to 1 hour were reported, however, in both those cities and in Philadelphia, San Francisco and Los Angeles.

In announcing its layoffs, TWA said it will continue to review the situation to determine whether additional cutbacks may be necessary.

The cutbacks, amounting to 3 per cent of the TWA payroll, will vary from city to city, the airline said, and would be spread among ground, station, maintenance and flying personnel.

TWA said its domestic schedules have been cut by 20 per cent because of the controllers' sick action.

Magistrate Court Charges Are Filed

Gary W. Curry, 19, 617 Wilkerson, was formerly charged with two capital offenses and one lesser charge Thursday afternoon, following his arrest Wednesday by the Pettis County Sheriff's Department for investigation of burglary of an occupied dwelling.

Prosecuting Attorney Henry Keeler told newsmen Thursday afternoon that charges of rape and two charges of robbery were filed in Magistrate Court against Curry.

About 2:20 p.m. Wednesday, Curry allegedly broke into the Robert Bohm residence, Route 3, forcibly raped Mrs. Donna Bohm, 24, and left with a shotgun and rifle he took from the home, according to Sheriff Emmett Fairfax.

After leaving the Bohm residence, Curry reportedly proceeded about a half-mile north on Route MM to the Cebe Brownfield residence where he took another shotgun and a rifle from Brownfield at gunpoint. He then had Brownfield give him some food and saddle one of his horses, saying he was going to hide out in the woods.

The Pettis County Sheriff's Department received a call from Brownfield, and while officers were enroute to the scene, they received a report of the robbery at the Bohm residence. Deputies Don Stratton and Jim Lawson apprehended Curry in a field on the Brownfield farm after he had some trouble with Brownfield's horse.

The other three men picked up by the Sheriff's Department after they were identified as being with Curry earlier, were released before noon Thursday, according to Fairfax.

The three charges filed against Curry are forcible rape, which is a capital offense and carries a possible sentence of

Order Redistricting For Pettis County

A court order, signed by Circuit Judge Frank Hayes, was filed in Pettis County Circuit Court Wednesday ordering the Pettis County Court to redistrict the county.

Henry Lamm, presiding judge of the county court, said Thursday that the order, originally applied for by 10 Pettis County realtors, was in compliance with the Supreme Court's recent ruling on one man, one vote.

Information in the order, an alternative writ of mandamus, states that there are 8,081 inhabitants in the Western District of Pettis County, represented by Judge Zeb Thomas, and 27,039 persons in the Eastern District, represented by Judge E. L. (Red) Birdsong.

In essence the order directs Lamm, Thomas and Birdsong to divide the county, population-

Crossroads Comment...

From now on for a few weeks we'll hear profound local analyses of the results of Tuesday's election especially among political partisans.

These postmortems provide interesting conversation if only they are kept on an unemotional basis which is difficult to do.

Before the election some wiseacres had concluded that a Republican mayoral victory was assured because a Democrat jumped the fence and became an Independent contestant. Maybe so. Who knows. Others point to the twilight campaign with emotional overtones against Jerry Jones Monday on the radio. A few political Solomons say this backfired on the Democrats.

On the other hand there was the election eve tactics of GOP campaigners pointing with scorn and concern to the salaried position of Democratic city chairman John Vandekamp as secretary-treasurer of the Board of Park Commissioners of which he is a member. Subsequently revealed was the fact that this payroll practice started as far back as the 1950's.

It is doubtful if voters today respond as they did in bygone years to last minute political blockbusters by campaigners who think they can alter the trend of public response at the polls for one candidate over another, or one issue over another.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Generators Silent at $10,000 a Day

WASHINGTON — The smell of Dixon-Yates, an electric power scandal that tainted the Eisenhower administration, has now crept into the backrooms of the Nixon administration.

President Nixon's rural electrification czar, David Hamil, has brought pressure upon an Indiana electric co-op to turn over much of its spanking new $75 million plant, built with the taxpayers' money, to the private utilities.

For a year, the plant has been ready to whir, but its giant generators have been largely silenced by legal strategems. The delay has cost the taxpayers $10,000 a day.

Conceived in controversy, the Rural Electrification Administration has brought electricity to most of rural America. In these areas, the REA is as sacred as baptism and, in the opinion of many, more essential to salvation.

As the co-ops have moved into towns that are served by private power, however, each new kilowatt of public power has been bitterly contested by private utilities.

Hamil ran the REA for President Eisenhower in the 1950s, now is back in control under Nixon. The efficient Hamil is a hero to the utilities who look upon him as a champion of free enterprise, rescuing the nation from the Morass of New Deal socialism.

Fox Guards Coop

But to the farmers, whose homes and farms would have remained until except for the REA co-ops, his reappointment is akin to putting the fox in charge of the chicken coop.

He blocked the co-ops from getting REA loans during the Eisenhower years. When the White House changed hands, the loans were untied. But it took until 1965 before the money was actually funded to build the $75 million Indiana plant.

By this time, the private utilities had lined up powerful backing to take the plant away from the co-op. One ally was the Indiana Public Service Commission, which is supposed to protect the consumers. But it lined up, instead, with the industry against the co-op.

One of the three commissioners, G. Patrick Clancy, retired this month. He was immediately offered a posh job with the Indiana Gas Association, run by some of the same companies he has just finished "regulating." Among them is a giant electric-gas combine, which is fighting the co-op.

Clancy, asked by this column whether he will accept the offer to change sides from the regulators to the regulated, said mildly: "I'm a private citizen now. I don't think it's anybody's business."

An Indiana court was also so eager to appear private power that it ordered Mayor Robert J. Millis of Boonville, Ind., to shut up about the benefits of public power under pain of contempt and jail.

Judicial Conflict?

And in 1968, David Lewis, then chief justice of the Indiana Supreme Court, cast the deciding vote against the co-op. The majority opinion, written by Lewis, was that the co-op had no authority to operate its fine new plant.

Lewis' son, Frank, happens to be a lawyer for Public Service Co., one of the firms most affected by the judge's decision. Judge Lewis, now in private practice, said he saw no reason to disqualify himself because his son wasn't taking part in the actual litigation.

Only in the federal appellate courts has the co-op won any victories, most recently in the Supreme Court which ruled at least that REA could operate the controversial plant using the co-op as its agent.

Last November, the private utilities came up with a proposal that the co-op should "retire, salvage and liquidate" certain facilities. This was echoed by the Indiana Commission which instructed the co-op in February to make sure the same facilities "shall be retired and salvaged."

—Anti-Public Alliance—

On March 30, Hamil joined the alliance against the co-op. He fired a telegram to the co-op declaring: "We recommend the modified company proposal now available and that (the co-op) immediately negotiate the leasing to the company of facilities."

If this is enforced, the private companies will take over much of the co-op's transmission lines and several other facilities, thus making a profit on the taxpayers' investment. The alternative, under Hamil, is to let the REA operate the plant for 40 months, then resell it — doubtlessly to the power companies.

The $75 million sellout may not be as big as the billion-dollar, Dixon-Yates boondoggle. But the odor is the same.

Note: The tough-skinned Hamil told this column that he knows the issue is a hot one but that, in his judgment, he is doing the right thing to push the co-op to compromise. Speaking for the power companies, Walter Matthews, president of Public Service Co., said in the long run the co-op electricity will cost more than private electricity. Along with the private power advocates, he denied that the utilities have the Public Service Commission in their pockets.

"Ours was just a more realistic proposal," explained Matthews, in telling why the Commission adopted the company plan as its own. Meanwhile, the taxpayers' loss continues to mount.

Learning Guaranteed

Teaching gimmicks are a dime a dozen, except that they can entail the outlay of many thousands of dollars by school boards, with no certainty of success in raising students' reading levels or mathematical skills or whatever.

But when private companies start putting their own money where their sales pitch is, it is a persuasive testimonial to their confidence in their product.

More and more merchants of packaged teaching programs are doing just that — guaranteeing to teach a student what they say they can teach him and in the time they say it will take to do it, or your money back.

One of the latest is "Project Read," which has been receiving rave notices in New York City where 40,000 students of all ages in 44 schools in Brooklyn and the Bronx began taking the program two years ago. It has also been introduced on a smaller scale in 50 other cities.

Developed by noted linguist Dr. M. Sullivan and Behavioral Research Laboratories of Palo Alto, Calif., "Project Read" is a new approach to reading in which the English language is broken down to its simplest forms and then put back together by the individual student working at his own pace with a programmed text.

So effective has "Project Read" been that BRL has announced that it is now offering it to school districts around the country on a guaranteed performance basis.

Here's hoping all such educational entrepreneurs make a bundle, for the nation's school children would be the real winners.

Looking Backward

NINETY-FIVE YEARS AGO

The smallpox has departed from the vicinity of Palestine and Bunceton and we understand there were only eight deaths altogether, rather than more as previously reported ... President Grant and family went to church last Sunday and straightway the fact is telegraphed over the country. Suppose they did go, what of it? Who needs the consolations of the gospel more than Ulysses?

FORTY YEARS AGO

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

The city Republican committee held an organization meeting in the court house offices of Probate Judge J. E. Smith. Chairman L. W. Satorius was in charge. Mrs. F. M. Hatfield was chosen vice-chairman; N. B. Mueller, secretary; and Mrs. William Campbell, treasurer.

Certainly the die was cast before Monday in the minds of the electorate about the tax reform bill. They were against it. Sedalia's mayoral choice was evident the day before election, as well as opinions about the school levy, the police pension, etc.

The old-fashioned so-called "smear campaigns" are devices of a gray-bearded political era. It has been replaced because voters have better lines of communication which are considerably more extensive today.

Insofar as the mayor and councilmen are concerned, now that the election is over, the main objective must be the welfare of the community above partisan politics. Retiring Mayor Ralph Walker, a Republican, foresees that Mayor Jones "will have a tough row to hoe" surrounded by all those Democrats, and a "dispicable political situation."

Initially Mayor Jones is reacting positively and diplomatically to the challenge. Sedalia voters who put him into office have confidence he can maintain his equilibrium at city hall the next four years. They will be called upon to support him in his determination to work for the best interest of Sedalia.

Military Is Muscling Nixon

Slower Viet Pullback Is Aim

By BRUCE BIOSSAT, Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)

Some knowledgeable sources here believe that possibly by mid-autumn President Nixon's military high command may persuade him to either slow our Vietnam combat troop withdrawals to a mere trickle or halt them altogether for an unstated interval.

Those who hold to this view think the Pentagon would like to see a lower-than-average withdrawal pace begin April 15, when Nixon's next pullout announcement is expected. But they doubt that the military yet has the "leverage" to be convincing on this score.

In the judgment of these sources, however, that leverage is increasing. The new fluidity in Laos and Cambodia, Hanoi clearly does not intend to yield its credibility as a fighting force in South Vietnam.

Whether the enemy's sporadic sharp thrusts are intended only for this purpose as Hanoi watches us withdraw is the key question. My skeptical sources think the attacks may well be the harbinger of a fuller, more broadly damaging assault later this year.

It is the flat expectation of some such assault that leads these sources to predict a stern confrontation between the President and his military leaders. At that time, my informants say, the generals and admirals could well put the question to Nixon this way:

"Mr. President, do you wish to continue withdrawals at a steady pace now that it is plain the enemy is taking advantage of these pullouts? We would remind you that you warned Hanoi and told the American people last Nov. 3 that we would respond with some sort of action if such advantage were taken of us."

"We cannot maintain the capacity to respond, to prevent the quick subjugation of South Vietnam by Hanoi, if at this stage you countenance further combat troop withdrawals."

The skeptics' argument goes even further and embraces what the high command might say if the President should plead that "political necessity" compels him to keep going inexorably down the pullout road. The military could retort, it is suggested, like this:

"But, Mr. President, the political damage to you may be much greater if you do stick to the withdrawal timetable and as a consequence South Vietnam goes down the drain."

Obviously, this entire line of reasoning by certain Washington specialists is predicated not only upon the assumption that Hanoi has the strength for a damaging offensive (few if any qualified Vietnam experts here seriously question that), but upon the conviction that this power will be used in the months just ahead.

Yet on this point, the probability of a real offensive, there is wide disagreement here. Many specialists think it will not happen, that Hanoi—while hacking away enough to keep fighting credibility—will keep a basically low profile in South Vietnam so as not to discourage our continued pullout of troops.

Another matter is involved. More than a few capital observers still believe the "tough talk" part of the President's Nov. 3 Vietnam speech was in some measure a signal to Hanoi to ease off to a lower fighting level and in considerable degree a "cover story" to satisfy his sizable hawkish constituency that we are not crawling away from South Vietnam in abject surrender. My conversations with known hawkish lawmakers gives proof the Nov. 3 speech was effective this way, just as it defused the antiwar movement by being persuasive on pullouts.

But my knowledgeable skeptics see Nixon's tough talk as the real line. They believe it has, in effect, made him captive of the generals, and that at some great crunching point in mid-1970 he will have to bow to an expected demand to stop withdrawals. Other sources insist nothing will dissuade the President from his pullout course.

Dick Richards of Detroit and Bill McKenney of Cleveland, the co-founders of the American Bridge League, defended this hand in one of the early tournaments. Actually, it looks too good to have actually been dealt but it does illustrate one important principle of play: Never to give up because you have a bust hand. Some of your spot cards may be important.

Bill opened the nine of spades on the theory that it was his longest and strongest suit. If he had opened any other suit, things would have been much easier for the defense from then on.

Dick took his ace of spades and returned the suit to dummy's jack. A trump was led and Dick decided to split his honors. He won the second trump lead and led a trump right back.

Declarer cashed his last spade and, if Dick had discarded carelessly, it would have been all over, but he carefully dropped the 10 of diamonds. The 10 or jack of clubs would have been just as good.

South's next lead was the deuce of clubs. This is where Bill came through with the killing play. He rose with his nine-spot. If he had played any lower club, South could have ducked completely in dummy and East would have been forced to win the trick and lead away from one of the kings.

If South had led a diamond, Bill would have played that nine in the same manner with the same result.

South could have made the game if he had known where all the cards were. He could just lead out all his trumps to remain with both aces in dummy. Then, if East unguarded a king, South would take two tricks in that suit. If he kept both kings guarded, South would refuse either finesse and then throw East in.

Plates Ready: 'Charge!'

By BETTY CANARY

You're wrong if you thought there was nothing than carefully selecting merchandise in a store, then marching happily behind the clerk to the cash register only to discover you have no check book. What's much worse is carefully selecting merchandise, marching happily, etc., writing a check and discovering you have no identification.

Oh, I've had troubles before. Like the time I tried to pay cash and the salesgirl in that store apparently had never before seen real green money. She kept shaking her head and asking, "You don't have a pink check or a red, white and blue credit card maybe?"

Now, of course, one needs not only a check but two credit cards and a driver's license as identification. Some stores ask for fingerprints and others take photographs. One woman suggested dental X rays as positive identification but frankly I doubt that would ever catch on.

I simply hope it never happens to you — being caught with an honest face and the explanation that the reason you have no identification is because your other handbag was stolen yesterday.

Perhaps a psychiatrist could explain it to me — why I felt vaguely guilty of having committed a crime by daring to go out in public without a full set of chargeplates. (A heinous crime at that, mind you. Not a simple little crime like running out of gas and having to walk to the service station in my nightgown

POLLY'S POINTERS

Not Only Your Nest
Can Be Feathered

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY and Tom—Many beautiful things can be made with feathers. My husband brought some turkey feathers home from a hunting trip but it was several years before I put them to use. I trimmed the tips off the long feathers and pasted them on a bubble hat frame purchased at a hat supply store. When the feathers are pasted on at an angle, the light brings out a beautiful glow that shines like copper. Pheasant feathers also make a pretty hat. Use your imagination as you go along.

Save some feathers to paste all over a cardboard turkey to make your table decoration for next Thanksgiving. Long ones could be added to a bouquet of autumn flowers. They also make pretty little Christmas trees by pasting the feathers on a 10-inch, cone-shaped, foam form. I use all-purpose, milky white glue to hold the feathers in place. I have many hobbies and find working with feathers is fascinating. Do have a feathery good time.—MRS. G. B.

DEAR POLLY—I am a nursery schoolteacher who wishes to tell Tom that there are many good uses for chicken, duck, pheasant and other feathers. Long, tall feathers are excellent for "feather painting"—either end could be dipped in the paint to make an interesting effect on paper. Feathers glued to paper, cardboard, wood, etc., are an excellent medium for making collages. Feathers stuck into foam make unusual art forms and are excellent for stimulating a child's imagination.—MRS. R. L.

Polly's Problem

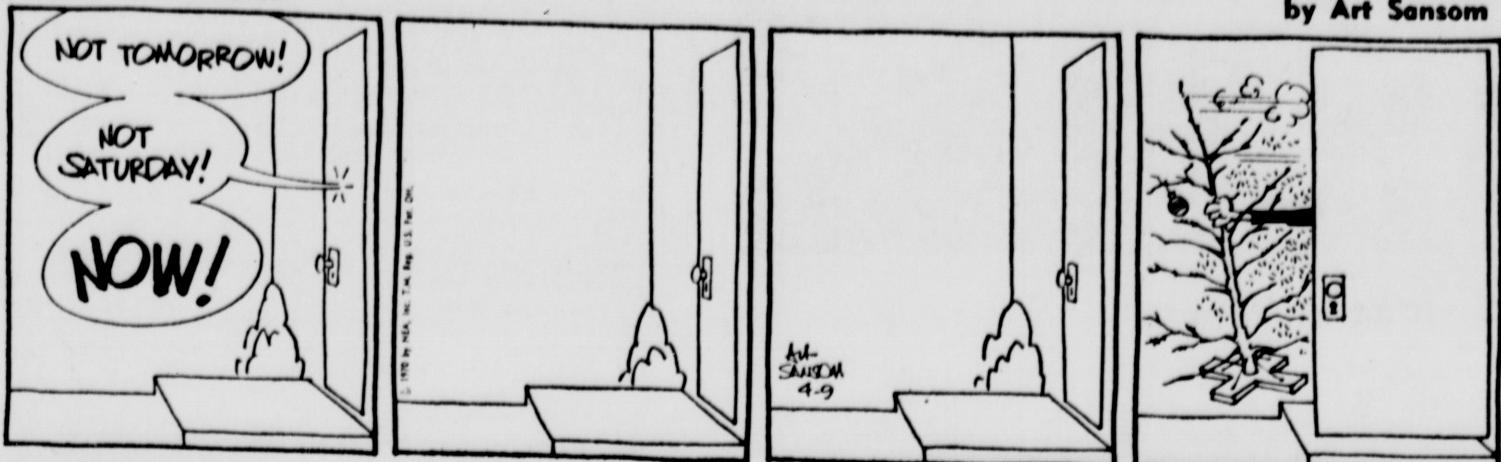

DEAR POLLY—How do I "clean" a wool afghan and matching pillows to be sure of the best results?—BETTY

DEAR POLLY—My husband noticed a roll of waxed paper was always falling out of the box. He pushed a large nail into each end of the box, extending inside the roll. No more problems with waxed paper, plastic wrap and foil rolling out of the box.—MRS. J. W. P.

Unleaded Fuel More Hazardous

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Restrictions on the use of leaded gasolines will not contribute significantly to the solution of air pollution problems and would cause other problems, speakers at the 42nd annual Lead Industries Association (LIA) said Thursday.

Howard E. Hesselberg, coordinator of air conservation for the Ethyl Corp., said proposed restrictions on the use of lead antiknock compounds in gasoline would intensify the problems of smog and air pollution attributable to automobile exhaust. He said the ban would introduce new and serious public health hazards and would serve no worthwhile purpose.

Hesselberg said unleaded gasoline exhaust fumes would increase photochemical smog and would increase the eye-irritating effect of the exhaust. One estimate is that general smog would be increased 25 percent by the use of unleaded fuel of quality with present gasoline.

"It has been demonstrated," Hesselberg said, "that the exhaust products of lead antiknock compounds do not contribute directly to the photochemical smog problem."

Another speaker, executive vice president J. L. Kimberly of the LIA, said lead emissions account for less than one-half of 1 per cent of all automobile emissions and there has been no showing that lead is a health hazard.

Hearing Granted Students

VERSAILLES — Mrs. Golda E. Rains

WARRENSBURG, Mo. (AP) — A hearing asked for by three student leaders on a year's probation has been granted at Central Missouri State College.

Kenton Askren, Craig Cassing and Steve Smith were placed on probation in connection with a petition proposing the resignation of the college president, Dr. Warren C. Lovinger.

The college said their cases would be reviewed at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday, April 29. They can bring legal counsel, but the hearing will not be open to the public.

Witnesses against them were identified as Dr. Lyle Broyles, assistant to Lovinger, and Dr. Tom Edmunds, vice president in charge of student personnel.

Edmunds also was a member of the disciplinary committee that invoked probation. The committee disqualified itself from the hearing because of previous knowledge of the case. Other members were Ellen Gower, dean of women, and Dr. H. L. Chalquist, dean of men.

A temporary disciplinary committee will be appointed to conduct the review, the college said.

Student government officers of the four University of Missouri campuses released a joint statement Wednesday night criticizing Lovinger. The release also supported the right of Central Missouri State College students to petition for his removal.

Father Elwood Kieser and actress Jane Wyman confer on a set for an "Insight" television show.

Baseball Game of the Week To Begin Broadcast Saturday For Fifth Season on NBC

For the fifth successive season, the NBC Television Network will colorcast the major league baseball Game-of-the-Week, starting with the National League game between the Cincinnati Reds and San Francisco Giants at 3 p.m. Saturday, April 11.

NBC Sports has planned its early season schedule so that the nation's sports fans would have an opportunity to see last year's divisional winners and this season's leading contenders in the first few weeks of the 1970 campaign.

The first five network Games-of-the-Week are: April 11 — Cincinnati at San Francisco; 1 p.m.; April 18 — Boston at Detroit; 1 p.m.; April 25 — Atlanta at Pittsburgh; 1 p.m.; May 2 — Minnesota at Baltimore; 1 p.m.; May 9 — San Francisco at New York Mets.

The Cincinnati-San Francisco game from the Giants' Candlestick Park will inaugurate a Game-of-the-Week schedule which covers 25

Saturday afternoon games and three Monday night prime-time contests (June 22, Aug. 17 and Sept. 7).

According to an agreement between NBC and baseball, there will be no blackouts in major league cities. The home cities of the two teams involved in the NBC network Game-of-the-Week colorcasts will receive a "backup" game, seen only in these two cities.

Curt Gowdy, who has won three major awards as a sports telecaster within the last year, and Tony Kubek, former All-Star shortstop with the New York Yankees, will be the NBC-TV announcers for the national colorcasts.

Jim Simpson, veteran network sports commentator, and Sandy Koufax, recently honored by the AP as baseball's outstanding player of the 1960's, will team up to telecast the backup games.

For the second year, baseball will sport championship races in four divisions.

'Insight' Programs Illuminate Problems, Inspire Stars' Roles

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) Quite often, I've talked to television and movie stars who have told me that they had been summoned to do an Insight program. It was something, they said, that they simply had to do — because of the force of Father Kieser's personality.

After meeting Father Elwood Kieser, I can understand. He's a tall, handsome, fair-haired, pipe-smoking man, and you get the impression that if he had chosen a lay career, he would at this moment be President of the United States of the World, or something equally impressive.

He's a Paulist, and and Paulists, he explains, spend most of their time serving outside the church. He began his own career of serving with a small adult education program, and decided that television reached a lot more people. So he talked CBS into giving him a shot.

After a few years of experimenting with formats, he hit on the idea of using straight drama.

"We don't have to strive to make points," he says. "We just illuminate the problems and the gospel emerges."

Because the program is free of the usual commercial controls and considerations, writers, directors and actors love to do it. Father Kieser says the dramas are "religious in the real sense of the term, but not pious."

He claims he is the freest producer in Hollywood, and he tries to transfer that freedom to his writers. He has used scripts by people like Rod Serling, Jim Moser and John T. Dugan, and directors like Arthur Hiller, Buzz Kulik and Lamont Johnson. His casts are always star-studded. Subject matter considers such questions as race, war, narcotics, pre- and extramarital sex, the generation gap.

At the moment, 258 stations use Insight — "and we will not accept a poor time slot," Father Kieser says.

Most of the props, costumes and sets are donated by the studios. "We've become Hollywood's baby," Father Kieser says. The program's office is right on the beach, in the house where Thelma Todd was murdered. It's owned now by Lola Lane, one of the Lane sisters, who lets them use the ground floor while she lives on the third floor.
